

Consent and Data Release City Airlines Selection Procedure

Eurowings has planned the multi-stage selection procedure of Lufthansa Group Airlines for the selection of its future pilots. The required selection levels are:

- BQ, Basic Qualification, proof of sufficient cognitive abilities
- Screening, proof of sufficient flying skills
- CQ, Corporate Qualification, Psychological assessment and corporate fit

In the selection process for a cockpit position at a Lufthansa Group airline, these selection tests can be mutually taken into account within certain time limits, provided they are conducted or have already been conducted in cooperation with interpersonal or DLR. This applies to both successful and unsuccessful selection stages and can lead to the accreditation of this selection stage in the case of success, or to a blocking period of a maximum of 24 months (BQ, CQ) or 12 months (Screening) before a renewed invitation for a major airline in the case of non-success.
